WITH THE District Agriculturist

By J. S. Duncan

Emergency Pasture and Hay

Pasture and hay may both be seriously limited this year because of winter killing and the prolonged dry spring. Very few farmers have any amount of feed in reserve after last winter. A situation such as this calls for action. As pasture is a mixture of Oats and Fall Rye seeded at a rate of about two and a half bushels per acre is quite satisfactory. It is best to divide the field so that the grazing can be alternated from one piece to the other.

As greenfeed, oats is the best crop. The variety Eagle gives a good yield but almost any of the later varieties are good. Some farmers may have to use some of the land they planned to summerfallow to produce pasture and greenfeed but if attention is paid to spraying if necessary there is no need for weed problems to develop.

Weed Control

Most weed spraying is done too late to obtain maximum benefits. If a crop needs spraying it should be done as soon as the crop is in a stage that is safe to spray. The smaller the weeds are the less chemical is needed to kill them and the less damage the crop suffers. For wheat and barley the 2,4-D Ester is safe and effective. For oats and flax the use of 2,4-D Amine or MCP is recommended as these are less harmful to the crop. It must be remembered that for Wild Buckwheat, Tartary Buckwheat and big Stinkweed plants that MCP is less effective than 2,4-D. Pick up a bulletin on "Chemical Weed Control" from my office.

Protect The Soil

Don't try to get those summerfallow fields too black and fine this year. (This is good advice any time.) Try to keep some straw and stubble on the surface and keep the soil a bit lumpy. This means that cultivators or blade equipment should be used most of the time and when tillers and discers are used speed should be kept down to three and one half miles per hour or slower. Soil blown onto road allowances and fence lines doesn't grow much crop for you.

ENGAGEMENT

FENTON—Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Fenton of 10326-71 Ave., Edmonton, announce the engagement of their daughter, Reta Alice to James, son of Mr. James Anderson and the late Mrs. Anderson of Priestland, Coleraine, Co. Derry, N. Ireland. Wedding to take place at Knox United Church, 104th St., 84th Ave., at 4:30 p.m. July 14, 1956.

Mr. A. C. Knudson is attending the postmaster's convention at Calgary this week.

Glen-Coa Gleanings

Last Sunday evening brought consternation and dismay to some members of our district, notably the T. A. Larson family who suffered the worst impact of the "twister," for such we surely must have been. Mr. Larson's barn was badly wrecked, three small calves escaping miraculously, his garage and chicken house were scattered all over the valley to the north, while the threshing machine was turned over. Fortunately there was no damage to the house beyond a broken window pane. Other neighbors had smashed windows, too.

The little group gathered for a Luther League program at Sharon church had rather a hair-raising experience, also. Suddenly the building actually swayed as a violent blast of wind struck. A terrible crash followed which made everyone think something awful was happening. It was the sturdy brick chimney which had come flying down, fortunately missing the cars about the building. Shingles were also ripped off the south-east corner of the roof. No one will be anxious to repeat such harrowing experiences.

Miss Evelyn Erickson had a few days at home this week.

We understand Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Pedel attended the Air Force demonstrations at Namsa last Saturday.

Several of the neighbors got together on Tuesday of this week to do the Fred Knudson's summerfallow. Then on Thursday they gathered again to give Mr. T. Larson a hand at picking up pieces and to do a bit of reconstruction.

Southern Sayings

Mrs. Wes Bacon left recently for Saskatoon to be with her mother who has undergone an operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Hill and girls were visitors to Vegreville last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Jackson and girls motored to Wainwright last Sunday, Lorna and girls stayed for a couple of days to visit with her sister, Mrs. L. McFarland.

Mrs. L. Ballough and grandson of Edmonton spent a few days recently visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Pasztor.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Jockem of Carstairs, Mr. and Mrs. F. Spooner and girls, Miss Chalkerton and Miss Dunagan, and Mr. C. C. Walker of Edmonton paid a flying visit to the J. Jackson home last Saturday evening on their way home to Edmonton from the Hardisty stampede.

EASTERLY ECHOES

Kml. and Mrs. Wm. Holt of Kamloops, B.C., paid a visit to the W. Sanders family recently.

On Tuesday a new granddaughter arrived for Mr. and Mrs. E. Fenton. The proud parents are Sylvia and Bob Shaw of Wainwright.

Another old landmark has changed location. The house of the Hawkins pump men of earlier days has been moved from its old site by the "big" bridge.

The last meeting of the W.I. was held at the Younker home. It was suggested we take in one day of the farm women's week at Vermilion in July. The W.I. will soon be shipping used woollens for blankets and etc. If you have some to send, contact any member of the W.I.

Lorraine Smallwood Honored at C.G.I.T. Graduation Exercises

On the evening of June 5 the Canadian Girls in Training held their first Graduation Service. This happy occasion also marked the 40th anniversary of CGIT and combined with the annual Mother and Daughter Banquet.

The banquet was held in the basement of the United Church and the tables were decorated in blue and white which are the CGIT colors.

Rev. L. D. Sheardown of the Alliance church, asked the blessing. A delicious meal was then served by the evening group of the W.A.

A sing song followed, led by Shirley Lovig, Della Symington and Alice Tomlinson.

Pat Russell gave the Toast to the Queen and all sang the National Anthem. Remarks by the president, Marian Smallwood, followed and a piano duet by Carol Matthews and Carol Smallwood was enjoyed.

Lorraine Pond proposed the toast to the church and Mrs. Riley gave the response.

Connie Owen then spoke of Lorraine Smallwood who is the first Irma CGIT graduate. She told of Lorraine's five years with the Irma group and of the splendid record of service she had given.

Mrs. M. T. Knudson came forward on behalf of the WMS presented Lorraine with a lovely rose corsage.

"Youth Undaunted" was sung by all. Then the intermediate group gave a skit entitled "The Case of the Mutilated Uniforms." This was well done and was both instructive and amusing. At the close of the skit, Barbara Murray gracefully explained the correct way of wearing uniforms and also the meaning of the insignia.

The toast to "Our Mothers" followed and was proposed by Della Symington. Mrs. A. Murray responded. Mrs. G. Fischer then gave a toast to the CGIT to which Alice Tomlinson replied. Carol Fischer then expressed thanks to the W.A.

The girls and their guests then went up to the body of the church where the graduation service took place.

Lorraine Smallwood was seated in the choir with members of next year's graduating class on either side. A hymn was sung and Mrs. Symington read the scripture John 15: 1-17.

Lorraine then arose and addressed the gathering and expressed in a very lovely way what CGIT had meant to her and how she would like the privileges of spending 5 more years in that organization. She spoke of the benefits and privileges received, both in our local group and at the various camps which she had attended. It was easily seen that Lorraine had been both willing and able to make the most of the physical, mental, moral and spiritual advantages to be found there.

A solo was sung by Mrs. R. L. Summerston and Rev. H. W. Inglis gave a short address expressing his pleasure in seeing these young girls, whom he had known from infancy, now growing up to take their places in the Christian work of our community.

"Rise Up Men of God" was then sung and Mrs. H. W. Inglis, leader of the senior CGIT group, came forward with Lorraine and dedicated her to further Christian service.

The ceremony closed with the benediction and the hymn "O Jesus I Have Promised."

Then they took away the stone from the place where the dead was laid. And Jesus lifted up his eyes, and said, Father, I thank thee that thou hast heard me.

And I know that thou hearest me always; but because of the people which stand by I said it, that they may believe that thou hast sent me.

And when he thus had spoken, he cried with a loud voice, Lazarus, come forth. And he that was dead came forth, bound hand and foot with graveclothes; and his face was bound about with a napkin. Jesus said unto them, Loose him, and let him go. St. John 11:41-44.

— ELECTION DAY IN ATHABASCA, JULY 4 —

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY —

CHRYSLALISH

—By LOUIS ARTHUR CUNNINGHAM

MIDGE spied the afternoon-tea crowd clustered around tables on the terrace; her elder sisters, Helen and Frances, surrounded by a lot of what Midge Ayling termed "outlanders", girls in gay summer silks and organdies, red, blue, purple, orange, looking like a crazy quilt with a green matrix of lawn and trees; men in white flannels and blazers. Midge wore a disreputable pair of khaki-shorts and a turtle-necked sweater and her cropped curls hadn't quite dried from her recent swimming excursion with Tara. There was a hundred pounds of Tara-Irish wolfhound, amiable but uncouth.

"Listen, Donkey," murmured Midge with an affectionate tug at the leash, "we won't go up the drive in full view of the nobility. Helen and Frances would be mortified. We'll go around the back."

Tara thought otherwise. His saucer-like eyes under their matted hair-curtains glowered balefully at Mortimer, Helen's tortoiseshell cat. Tara rummled like thunder and started off after Mortimer, who was bound for tea and tidbits.

"Hi-yah!" squealed Midge, jerked off balance. "Back, you—" She tried to untangle her wrist from the twisted leash. Trees, shrubbery, flower-beds, whirled by in a blur—then she was in among the tea.

She heard screams, shouts, the clatter of crockery, felt a mufin hit her in the ear and something wet slosh down her leg. Her hand rested in the middle of someone's French pastry, and she came to a halt in the lap of a grinning youth who had a stranglehold with one hand on Tara's neck and with the other on Midge's shoulder, his arm encircling her.

"You're late," he said, "but you shouldn't have rushed so; you've fallen off your horse."

Midge wriggled away from his arm and stood up. She didn't know him at all, and the rest of the Big Canadian order for prefabricated hangars

Prefabricated hangars, each 16,000 sq. ft. in area, are to be supplied to the Royal Canadian Air Force by a Wolverhampton firm. The order is worth $1.3 million and its award follows successful tests by the R.C.A.F. on a prototype hangar lent to them two years ago.

The hangars, which will be in position by the end of August, will be of aluminum and welded steel.

A number of other Canadian contracts are being carried out by the firm, who estimate that this year the value of their business in Canada will be about $3 million. They are supplying factories, warehouses and other buildings for, among others, Rolls-Royce at Montreal, Canadian Pacific Railway, Imperial Oil Company, du Pont, Canadian Petrofina, and fishery boards.

crowd only casually. She felt the eyes of Helen and Frances before she looked into them to find bitter reproach and accusation. Helen's were blue and blazing, Frances' were gray and glowering. Midge groped for Tara's leash.

"Aren't you—" Helen and Frances spoke at once.

"Wordsworth," said Midge lightly.

"Dickens," murmured the strange young man who had wavy black hair and a thin brown face. Midge giggled.

"I'm sorry," she said with a contrite tilt of her eyes at the upset party. "But it was that wretched Mortimer's fault. Tara and I were going home by way of the hedge and the tradesman's entrance."

The dark young man guffawed and instantly smothered it.

"Sense of humor," murmured Midge.

"I think you had better resume your journey," said Frances icily. "It seems—"

"May I be presented to the young lady?" said the dark young man. "Your sister, isn't she?"

"Afraid so. Millicent, let me present Mr. Gerald Wycoff."

Midge nodded and wiped a chocolate smudge from her finger.

"Can't you stay?" began Gerald Wycoff. "I—"

Midge shook her head. "I have to put Tara in his stall, then I have a few chores to do. I trust," she finished brightly, "you'll forgive me for tearing myself away."

She walked away from the minor chaos, Tara shambling beside her, a slender, straight, long-legged girl in that limbo period when she stands on the limit of womanhood with childish things put by and no step taken into the beckoning land. But Midge remembered those dark bright eyes and the wide smile and the strong yet gentle clasp of his arm. Midge sighed and absently scratched Tara's floppy ear.

She left him in his kennel and went upstairs to sluice sand off herself under an icy shower. Dressing the usual lightning process of donning tweed skirt and sweater, ankle-sock and brogues and making motions at the curls with a bristly brush. This done, she looked in the mirror. Usually only for a moment, this scrutiny of herself, but today—

Over the fresh young beauty of her face there passed a shadow—or was it a brighter light—and the carbon smudge came off and the shift and the sox and the tongued brogues. As the butterfly, dropping off its cocoon, emerges iridescent into the sun—

"Look at Midge!"

She heard Frances' stage-whisper to Helen just as she entered the dining-room. She hadn't delayed purposely. Usually, she was the first there. But tonight she didn't feel hungry. She felt serene and gentle towards everyone—even Frances, who always plagued her. She wore a frilled frock of delicate shell-pink, and silk stockings and slippers and her hair shone in the sunset; no powder or rouge could entrance the flawless brown and rose of Midge's cheeks.

"Midge—" It was Tony, the only brother and the eldest of the four—"You are very beautiful."

Midge once would have thrown a roll at him; now she looked down at her plate and said, "Thanks, Tony."

For the dark young man was there and had risen to put her in her chair and had stared at her as one who has witnessed a miracle. There was another man, Lindsay Clark, a friend of Tony's, and that was all. Mr. Ayling was dining at his club; their mother had long since gone, when Midge was very young.

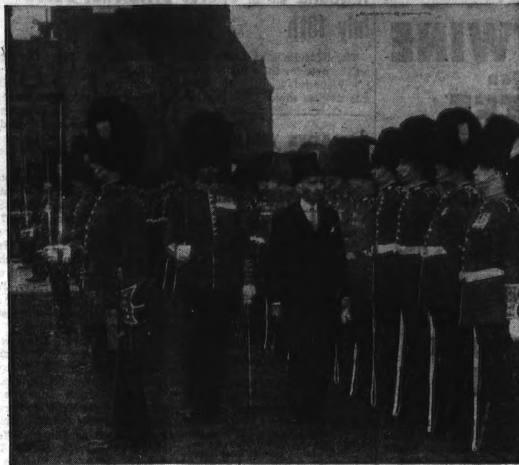

Gerald Wycoff at Midge's right, with Helen above him, didn't resume the gay conversation that Midge's entry had stifled. They were all quieter. It seemed strange to all of them—to the Aylings, anyway. Midge was usually the centre of a barrage of wise-cracks, but you couldn't seem to talk that way to this new, strangely quiet Midge.

Afterwards Gerald Wycoff said softly, "Are you really the girl who came to the tea-party with the wolfhound and—and fell in my lap and—?"

Midge looked at him gravely, then her lips curved in a very little smile.

"No," she said, "I'm afraid I'm not."

GOVERNOR-GENERAL VINCENT MASSEY inspects the Governor-General's Foot Guards and the Canadian Grenadier Guards of Montreal at the traditional Trooping the Color ceremony in Ottawa recently. The ancient ceremony originated about 400 years ago when troops rallied to their color in times of emergency. Several thousand spectators braved the rain to witness the ceremony on Parliament Hill.

Turkey commemorating historic contribution to mercy, science begun 750 years ago

Turkey is commemorating a historic contribution to mercy and science—the establishment 750 years ago of a hospital and medical clinic at Kayseri.

Some original structures still stand in the central Turkish city. Early documents reveal that the hospital employed two general practitioners, two surgeons and two eye doctors. When founded in 1206, it was ranked among the world's best.

Even then, hospitals were not new in human experience, the National Geographic Society says. Some authorities think the earliest medical schools were the Temple of Asclepius, which pre-date the Christian era. Ancient Romans built infirmaries for their soldiers—possibly the first military hospitals.

Many early religious orders devoted their time to the care of the sick. In the 4th century AD, St. Paul, a founder of monastic institutions, established a religious hospital at Caesarea in Capua docia. Paris was served by a similar hospital founded in the 600's.

Throughout the Dark Ages many physicians tried to preserve Greco-Arabic medical knowledge. Much medical learning filtered out to the world from the School of Salerno. It towered among medical institutions of the 12th century.

Women studied nursing and obstetrics at Salerno, and a treatise of the time prescribed cures for many diseases.

As the world started emerging from the Dark Ages, outstanding medical schools sprang up in Oxford, England; Paris and Montpellier in France; Rome, Siena and Padua in Italy.

Nearly all illnesses were treated with strict regulation of diet. Sewage, rich in iodine, was used to combat goiter as early as the 12th Century. Animal organs formed the base of many medical compounds, and one known concoction contained 87 substances, of which the chief ingredient was a poisonous snake's flesh.

Popular remedies included hot baths, purgation and blood-letting. One professional paper offered this advice to physicians: (1) The patient's condition should always be regarded as grave, thus sparing embarrassment if he died; (2) the physician should not flirt with a patient's wife, daughter or maid servant; (3) medicine should be prescribed, whether necessary or not, lest the patient recover and think the physician did him no service.

Early hazards

Some physicians practised under hazards. Those in Visigothic Spain could not collect their fees if the patient died. Municipally-hired physicians in 13th-century Spain had to treat specified numbers of people. The doctors worked among the poor in public hospitals, under obligation to attend each patient three times a month. Until the time of Frederick the Great, Prussian army surgeons had to shave the officers.

Hospitals came early to the New World. Cortes built one in Mexico in the 1520's. Others were established in Montreal and Quebec in mid-17th century. Pennsylvanians obtained the first charter for a hospital in the American colonies in 1751—fore-runner of thousands now dedicated to the people's health.

Erection of microwave towers starts

REGINA. — Steel work on the first microwave tower in Saskatchewan got under way early in June, with work on two more towers to be started a few days later.

Officials of the Saskatchewan Government Telephone Board said that steel for three towers has been delivered, and others in the 21-tower system would be delivered as three-in-a-series of towers are completed.

The first three towers to be erected will be situated at Moosomin, Whitehead and Grenfell. It is expected that the steel work on the Moosomin-Regina-Saskatoon route, which consists of 10 towers, will be completed by the end of July. Two of the towers will be erected on the roofs of the new telephone exchange buildings in Regina and Saskatoon.

Fabricated in Winnipeg by the Dominion Bridge Co. Ltd., the galvanized steel structures will be erected by crews of the Federal Steel Erection Co. Ltd., of Winnipeg and Edmonton, which operates with three crews of 10 men each. Included in the crews are eight erectors, a hoistman and a foreman, who will erect 25 feet of tower per day at each site.

Repeater equipment

On completion of towers, antennas and wave guides will be added to the towers, in addition to repeater equipment in the tower building—all for microwave operation early in 1957.

The Moosomin tower, a 60-ton structure, will stand 225 feet high, while other towers in the Moosomin-Regina-Saskatoon section are from 62½ feet (Sintaluta), to 262½ feet (McLean), the latter being the tallest proposed tower in Saskatchewan.

There are two smaller-type towers in the Regina-Alberta border section of the Trans Canada microwave system. They are both 37½ feet high and will be situated at Caron and Cross.

Officials added that the installation of a microwave system will greatly increase the number of telephone circuits available for inter-provincial and Trans-Canada telephone service. The present pole line circuits will be used to connect intermediate points to the microwave system for "long haul" calls.

Baseball Highlights Farmers Day Sports

(From The Viking News)

Farmers Day, June 8, was duly observed here with a program of sports, bingo and a dance, through the co-operation of several FUA and FWUA locals, the Viking and District Chamber of Commerce and the Viking baseball club.

The ladies of the FWUA operated the booth, the baseball club conducted the ball tournament, and the Chamber of Commerce managed the booth and provided the P.A. system.

The main attraction was the baseball tournament which provided some pretty fair ball.

In the first game, Sedgewick lost to Mannville in a well-played game, by the score of 2 to 1. In the second game, Viking defeated Loughheed 5 to 2, featured by the pitching of Ed Guley for the Shamrocks. In the final Mannville defeated the Shamrocks by the score of 7 to 9.

The Daysland orchestra furnished music for the dance at night.

Jehovah Witnesses Meet At Camrose

The Assembly of Jehovah's witnesses held at Camrose over the week-end was climaxed on Sunday by a public address "Consulting God On World Affairs" by C. E. Hepworth, of Toronto, a representative of the Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society. An attentive audience heard him speak on this subject of world importance.

The speaker pointed out during his talk that "more than 2,000 years ago the Bible peered down into our day and marked 1914 as the beginning of the end of this system of things. Jesus' disciples wrote further about this eventful generation, stating that it would be marked by an increased crop of ridiculers, also a flourishing harvest of ultra-rich, and a moral break-down." To prove this he quoted Luke 21:7-8, James 5:1-4, and 2 Tim. 3:1-5, "irrefutable evidence," he said, "for the fulfillment of these prophecies since 1914.

A most interesting feature of the convention was the baptism service on Saturday afternoon. Nine new ministers were ordained by means of complete water immersion, a symbol of their complete dedication to do Jehovah's will.

During July and August of this year Jehovah's witnesses will be attending District conventions which have been arranged for over 150 countries of the world. Local witnesses of Jehovah are making plans to attend conventions that have been arranged for Edmonton, July 28 to 29 and Regina, August 9-12.

Annual Meeting St. Paul Presbytery At Lloydminster

One hundred W.A. members registered at the Grace United Church at Lloydminster on Wednesday, May 30 to attend the Annual Meeting of the St. Paul United Presbytery W.A.

Mrs. T. Davis, the President, called the meeting to order at about 1:20 p.m. and from then on it was a very busy afternoon.

Reports from the various committees were heard which all showed that the W.A.s had been active in worthwhile projects. There were two highlights of the meeting. One was the awarding of the Life Membership to Mrs. M. Enger (past president) by Mrs. T. Davis. The other was the message brought by Mrs. Birdsell of Edmonton. "Hope" was the theme of the meeting and she had interwoven her talk around this theme.

Among other things she said that hope was the sustaining force by which we live. Hope requires faith to believe in the unseen and the unknown. We need to believe in ourselves, our fellowmen and in God. Hope requires vision to see beyond our own horizon.

Mrs. R. Sinclair accompanied by Mrs. J. Hemstock favored us with a delightful solo. The Lloydminster W.A.'s humorous song of their own rendition was much enjoyed. Many thanks go to the Lloydminster W.A. for their hospitality, their delicious dinner and tea.

Vermilion graciously extended an invitation for the Annual Meeting to be held there on the second Wednesday in May 1957.

The following is the new slate of officers:

Past President, Mrs. M. Enger, Irma.

CHEVROLET

A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

Strong, majestic river in Atlantic -- the Gulf Stream

There is a river in the Atlantic Ocean. Unlike the rivers of the land its banks and its invisible mile-deep bottom are of cold water but the river itself is warm—80 degrees Fahrenheit for its first 400 miles. In all the earth there is no other flow of water so majestic. None is so long or so strong as this, the Gulf Stream, states an article by E. Griffiths in Neutical Magazine, Glasgow, Scotland.

Picture a warm water river, 400 and more miles wide, with its source in the Gulf of Mexico and its mouth in the Arctic. Think of it pouring into the ocean the discharge of 10,000 river Thames.

Think of it flowing—more rapidly than the majestic Amazon—over 8,000 miles of cold ocean and bringing warmth and life to lands in the Arctic Circle that otherwise would have been as bleak as Greenland.

A steam heating plant of similar proportions would stagger the imagination. Yet this one is a working reality.

Inconceivable heat

Far up in Northern Norway—well within the Arctic Circle—the port of Hammerfest feels it. All winter long the harbor remains open. Fishermen come and go. But Elga, 800 miles south, is icebound the whole winter.

The amount of heat stored in the Gulf Stream is inconceivable. Britain has, it is estimated, enough coal for some 2,500 years. Pile it all together for one massive conflagration. Throw in the entire reserves of oil and natural gas in America. Together they would not produce the amount of heat energy carried by the Gulf Stream in a single year.

In the true sense the Gulf Stream is not a river at all. Instead of widening its channel from head to north, as rivers do, the stream narrows seaward. Instead of deepening as it goes on it grows shallower.

Rubber pads for housemaid's knee

Cure for housemaid's knee—knee savers for cleaning and gardening.

One manufacturer has come up with lightweight rubber pads which strap on. Another is out with a combination tray and sponge rubber cushion. Sturdy tubular steel handles help the housemaid kneel or rise, and can be pulled together to transform the tray into a carry-all for garden tools or cleaning aids.

Flip the tray upside down and it becomes a handy stool or a step to help you reach high shelves or windows. The entire "gardenoid" can be wiped clean with a sudsy sponge and the rubber mat is replaceable.

DISCREDITED

Buddhism has been discredited in Korea for more than 400 years. Confucianism is the official cult and ancestor worship is universal.

On The Side: By E. V. Durling

Though described as a trade, bricklaying is really an art. It has always had a strong appeal for men of unusual intelligence and artistic tendencies. Sir Winston Churchill is an accomplished amateur bricklayer. So accomplished in fact he was able to pass the examination given to those entitled to a union card. Among professional bricklayers, the most distinguished was the poet Ben Jonson. As you know, Jonson's literary brilliance was not far below that of Shakespeare's. Ben's most quoted poem is that titled, "To Celia," in which are included the following immortal lines:

Drink to me only with thine eyes,
And I will pledge with mine;
Or leave a kiss but in the cup
And I'll not look for wine.

What's in a name?

How do you like the name your parents gave you? Sixty percent of males and 70 percent of females don't care for the first name their papa and mama selected for them. In Belgium parents can't give a child any name they please. If, for example, they want to name a boy Edgar they have to get the approval of the registrar of births. That is the law. A very good law it is. I believe it should be possible for children when reaching the age of 16 to legally change their first name if it doesn't appeal to them.

Manufacture something people use but once and then is thrown away. That is what I heard a highly successful business man advise a young fellow. If, when you consider going into business for yourself, keep this in mind . . . A two-mile road in Korea that was constructed by U.S. army engineers is named "Marilyn Monroe Road." It has 23 curves.

A taxing situation

As you know if the Prince and Princess of Monaco are without an heir, possession of the principality reverts to France and the Monagans, who are now practically taxless, will have to pay taxes. Not only that, the young men of Monaco now exempt from army service will be drafted for the French army. Some businessmen of Monaco, still worried as to whether or not the prince and princess will be childless, have inquired at Lloyd's of London regarding insurance against such an eventuality. Lloyd's man said such insurance was a possibility but would require that Prince Rainier agree to a medical examination by the company's physicians.

Of husbands and haircuts

Only 30 percent of persons of marriageable age in Ireland are married. Of the rest, 84 percent are bachelors and spinsters. Six percent are widows and widowers. Prince Aly Khan, one of the best husbands Rita Hayworth ever had, speaks 12 languages. . . . George Hardy, celebrated barber of Paris, uses a razor only for a haircut. Monster Hardy claims that is the only way to give a man a truly artistic haircut.

Zero year for presidents

If even slightly superstitious the man elected president of the United States in 1900 will have something besides the cares of office to worry about. Every U.S. president elected in a year ending in zero has died in office. That includes Harrison, Lincoln, Garfield, McKinley, Harding and F. D. Roosevelt.

Man's ability to change weather just beginning

The golden age of man's ability to change the weather is just beginning, a group of weather experts has been told.

Dr. H. G. Houghton, chairman of the department of meteorology at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, told delegates to a world conference on weather modification that "there is optimism throughout the entire field."

"We have devoted most of our attention to the water cycle, but this is only the beginning. Even greater possibilities are opening to us."

Houghton was skeptical about a report by President Eisenhower's advisory committee on weather control that cloud seeding had increased rainfall in California, Oregon and Washington by from nine to 17 percent.

"The data we obtain for our statisticians comes from rain gauges," he said. "In a given area there wouldn't be more than five or 10 of them. They are about as big around as a cup. What kind of a sample does that give you? That's one of the real troubles with this statistical business."

Houghton expressed optimism over the weather modification progress made in the last 10 years.

"Once," he said, "the question was will rain-making work? Now it is how well does it work?" He said the gulf that separates the believers from the non-believers as far as rain-making is concerned has narrowed.

Experimentation in weather modification had become more complex.

"In the early days, it seemed a relatively simple thing. Experiments were tried in laboratories and then taken out of doors. Now things are indeed complex, for we realize we are talking about the entire atmosphere, not one small cloud."

Grasshopper invasion is possibility

Plans for a new government policy in grasshopper control were endorsed by Manitoba municipal representatives meeting at MacGregor May 16.

The new plan, outlined by H. E. Wood of the Manitoba department of Agriculture, would call for the government to co-operate with the municipalities in refunding to farmers half the cost of chemicals on purchases exceeding $10.

The government would match the municipal subsidy, dollar for dollar. Under the new policy, farmers could apply for a rebate on their purchases of grasshopper poison whether used on their farms, on adjoining road allowances or on vacant land.

The business of stocking and servicing the farmers, Mr. Wood said, will be left to commercial firms under the new plan.

Speaking on the expected severity of this year's grasshopper crop, Dr. R. D. Bird and W. Romanow of the Dominion Entomological Laboratory said that weather conditions will have a major influence. A hot, dry June makes for ideal hatching conditions, they said.

Areas expected to be troubled with grasshoppers this year are those extending southward from Neepawa and Gladstone to the Assiniboine River with considerable infestation in the Elgin Creek-Carman area. The country around Dominion City is expected to be infested as well, they said.

Term ended but still at the jail
Robert W. Paig, 62, of Virginia, lost his job last July, could find another one and ended up in city jail, sentenced to three-month terms one each of six worthless cheque counts.

When the record clerk at the jail resigned April 20, Paig—still a prisoner—looked over his duties.

Paig's jail term ended this week, but he's still at the jail—on the city payroll as clerk and a deputy city sergeant.

"He has done an exceptionally good job," said city Sgt. Frans A. Cayado, who noted Paig has made several improvements in the record system.

SMALL TRUCK LOAD LIMITS

(From Organized Farmer)

It appears that confusion exists among farmers with regard to load limits on lighter type farm trucks. To clear up any possible misunderstanding, The Organized Farmer herewith reprints a clause from the Vehicles Act as it stands in the new license year.

"Two-axled vehicles of the lighter type which are designed by the manufacturer to be equipped with only single 7.50x18 or smaller tires on the rear axle are permitted a tolerance of 50 percent in excess of the maximum gross weight computed."

This means that a farmer with a half-ton truck, for instance, is allowed to haul a fairly heavy load. Most half-ton trucks have a gross (loaded) vehicle weight listing on the license registration of 4,800 pounds maximum. The tolerance of 50 per cent allowed under the act would boost this up to 7,200. As an illustration, supposing that a farmer's half-ton weighs 3,800 lbs.

empty, he will be entitled to carry loads ranging up to 3,400 pounds, with the combined vehicle and load weight, thus coming to the maximum of 7,200 allowed for his particular truck (gross vehicle registration — 4,800 pounds). Tires must be in first class condition for maximum load ratings if safety is to be ensured.

Under amendments to the Vehicles Act, farmers this year are paying less for their truck licenses. The reductions range from five to ten dollars and up on all farm classifications. The farm union has been striving for some time for a reduced schedule of license fees on farm trucks and the new rates are in line with former union proposals.

Mrs. Enger is W.A. past president of the presbytery and the presentation was made by Mrs. Davis, the new president. This hot, dry, dusty, windy weather which we have had ever since early May is proving very trying for one and all. We can think of nothing more welcome than a three-day rain. Last Sunday evening the wind assumed hurricane proportions. Out south west of town there must have been a small cyclone for when the big breeze struck the farm of Toilett Larson it upset his threshing machine, tore off one end of his big barn and carried away and completely wrecked his double garage and chicken house. Whatever the weather, something always happens. The cut worms and mosquitoes are so brawny this year we think they must have migrated from Texas.

Alberta's Natural Gas Industry: COMMUNICATION SYSTEMS

When the weather is BAD — that's when natural gas is needed most — one reason why the gas company has unfailing communication links throughout its system. Regardless of the weather, high frequency short wave radio gives contact between strategically located radio stations and a fleet of modern, radio-equipped service vehicles. Besides this radio network the company makes use of leased teletype and telephone wires. All these methods have one aim — dependable communication — an essential part of natural gas service.

With GAS you get service — we plan it that way!
